

Flynn's Five Way

Claudia Highman

You'd have to be hiding under a rock not to have heard about actor Flynn Matthews cocaine snorting video. It hit, and nearly exploded, the internet yesterday morning in a wave of recriminations and also support from his legion of fans.

It's hardly surprising he has a following. Tall, sun kissed and ripped Flynn is your archetypal Hollywood Hunk. There's been no kiss and tell as of yet so one would be forgiven for thinking he's a one-gal guy except that he always has a different girl on his arm at premieres. No one questions this, least of all his fans who by all accounts believe it gives them a chance to be the one posing at their idol's side. In the video, filmed in Soho's Partaay nightclub private lounge, he's flanked by girls dressed in barely-there dresses flaunting their assets in his face but he appears more occupied with the powder on the table until the last three seconds of the video where there's a glimpse of him tonguing one girl while fondling the breasts of another.

Allegedly these antics continued once the filming stopped. According to a source close to the fallen star Flynn was whisked out of the club along with four of the girls featured in the video to a nearby hotel where he entertained them and we're not talking about a song and dance routine. All four girls left the hotel satisfied. Performance enhancing drugs maybe.

Interior of Partaay Night Club
Soho

